Where is the image of Ireland's national flag? The youth graduate ceremony is full of pompousness, ceremony and excitement. There is nothing in it which any other college does not do better than, in the final analysis, is far different.

It is a beautiful thing to see the youth and the nation's spirit. The ceremony is a great thing to see. The ceremony is a great thing to see.

What is the image of Ireland's national flag? The youth graduate ceremony is full of pompousness, ceremony and excitement. There is nothing in it which any other college does not do better than, in the final analysis, is far different.

It is because of its students, faculty and staff members, president and trustees, that Indiana Central is alive and is growing. We have already seen growth by the construction of a new library, a larger enrollment, the formation of new clubs, and the expansion in course curriculum. It is hoped that in the future, students will continue to reap the benefits of growth.

FIRST SEMESTER ACTIVITIES

WELCOME FRESHMEN

The "Welcome Freshman sign greeted 417 new Centralites in the fall of '78. Little did they know what was in store for them in the coming weekend. 1) Natalie Haverty keeps piling more on top of Stephanie Reynolds. 2) Lisa Monday (left) also starts the long haul of moving in with the help of the industrious Betty Feemster (right). That night the freshmen were greeted by Dr. Sease at the banquet dinner — which the sophomores served. The indoctrination further included campus tours, mini-workshops, dances and 3) a 2-hour game of "college life". Couples 4) Cathy McCarty and a friend, also 5) Rusty Freeman and Tanya Guinn, work on fulfilling a social requirement for graduation. Part of the entertainment came to the tune and vocals of 6) Rod Wimmer, Bill Bruce, Greg Scott, and 7) David Llewellyn and Little Sass.

"Meet Me In The Library"

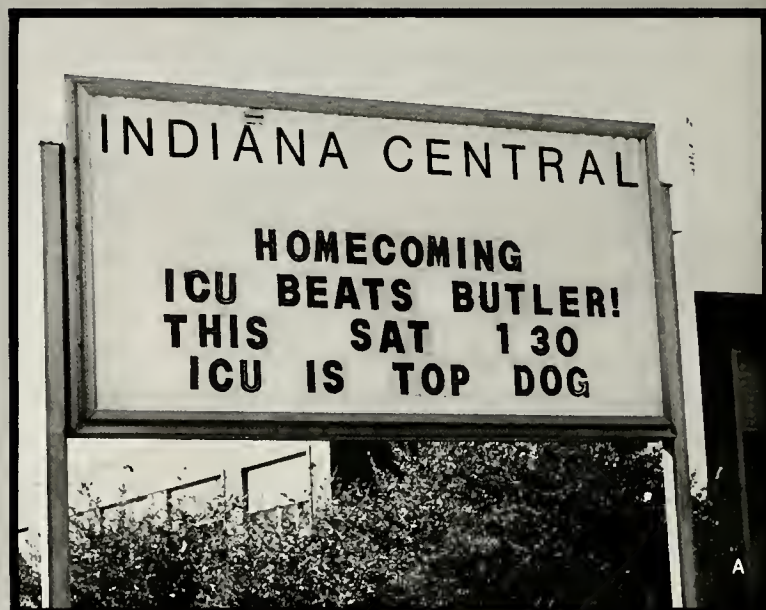

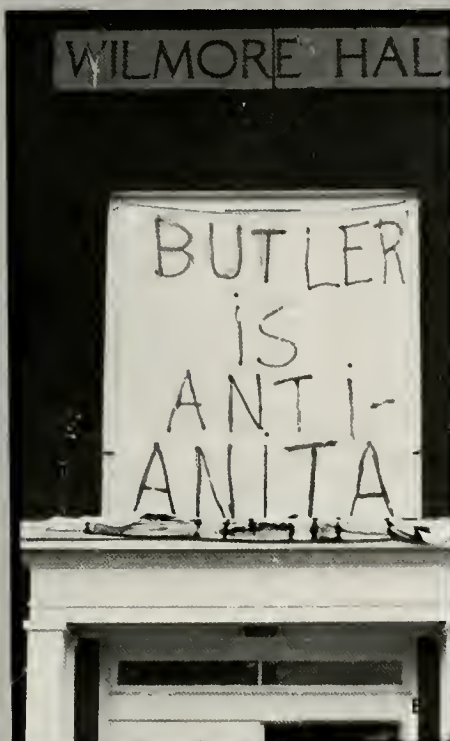

Kenneth W. Smith, president of the Board of Education, said the Board of Education is proud to have the new library building. The new library building is a landmark in the community. - b. Sophomore fullback Dan Williams catches a pass for first-down yardage.
- c. Members of the Greyhound offense await their return to the game.
- d. Coach Bill Bless and Quarterback Doug Clark confer on the sidelines, as Scott Miles attends to Clark.
- e. Junior defensive end Dave Wollman talks with two future Greyhounds.

From the coach's standpoint, the 1977-78 football season was a disappointment. The 6-3-1 record was a poor indicator of the type of talent that was on the roster.

Despite the disappointing record, the season did hold many high points. Coach Bless recorded his first victory over cross-town rivals, the Butler Bulldogs, for the Indy "Top-Dog" trophy in a game that was also the Hounds homecoming.

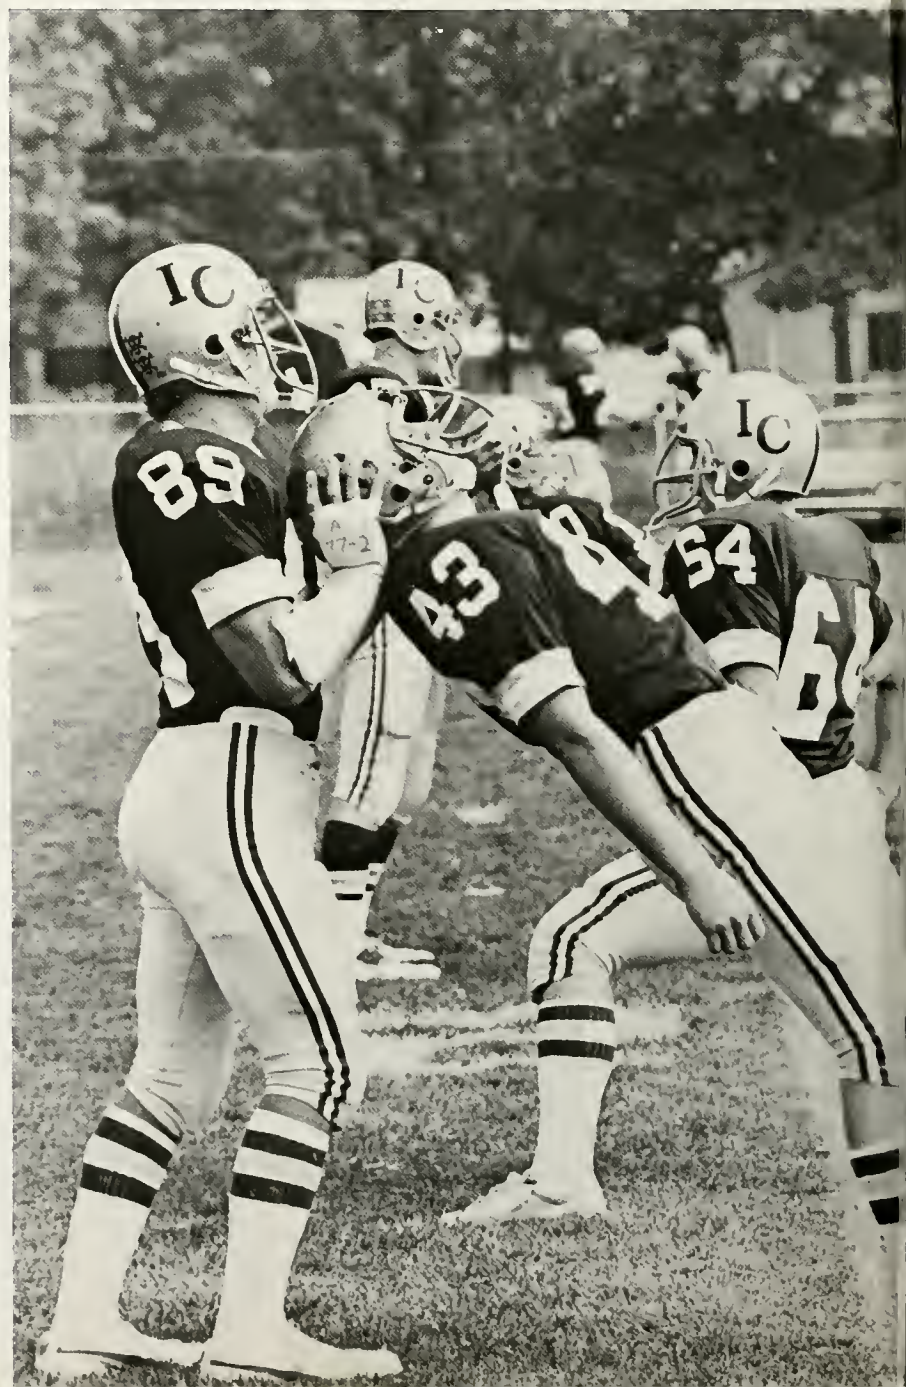

Seniors Karl Beer, a tight-end, and John Peters, a linebacker, were named All-Americans for their achievements on the playing field and in the classroom.

Tom Geffert, and Don Pittman, who were also co-captains for the year, along with Dave Sawrie, John Peters, Doug Clark, Dave Wollman, and Tim Lanie were selected to the All-Indiana Collegiate Conference roster.

In a dinner for the fall sports, Don Pittman was voted by his team — Most Valuable Defensive Lineman, Tom Geffert was voted Most Valuable Offensive Lineman, Most Valuable Defensive Back was Dave Sawrie, Most Valuable Offensive Back and Most Valuable Player was Darrell "Duddy" Reeves. The Kelso Reid Mental Attitude Award went to Steve Sark and Jett Kirkman. The team Captains for next year were also announced at the dinner. They were, offensive captains Doug Clark and Darrell Reeves and defensive captain Dave Wollman.

*members of Alpha Psi Omega

Indiana Central University's Theatre Department opened its 1977-78 season by presenting the touching play, THE MIRACLE WORKER, written by William Gibson. This moving play follows the struggles of a little girl, Helen Keller, who with help of a headstrong young Irish woman, Annie Sullivan, conquers two seemingly insurmountable obstacles — deafness and blindness. The play captures the picture of defeat and hopelessness felt by the Kellers prior to Helen's awakening. And equally well, it depicts the total ecstasy which envelopes Helen, her family, and most of all — her teacher, when she finally breaks the barriers and "sees" everything.

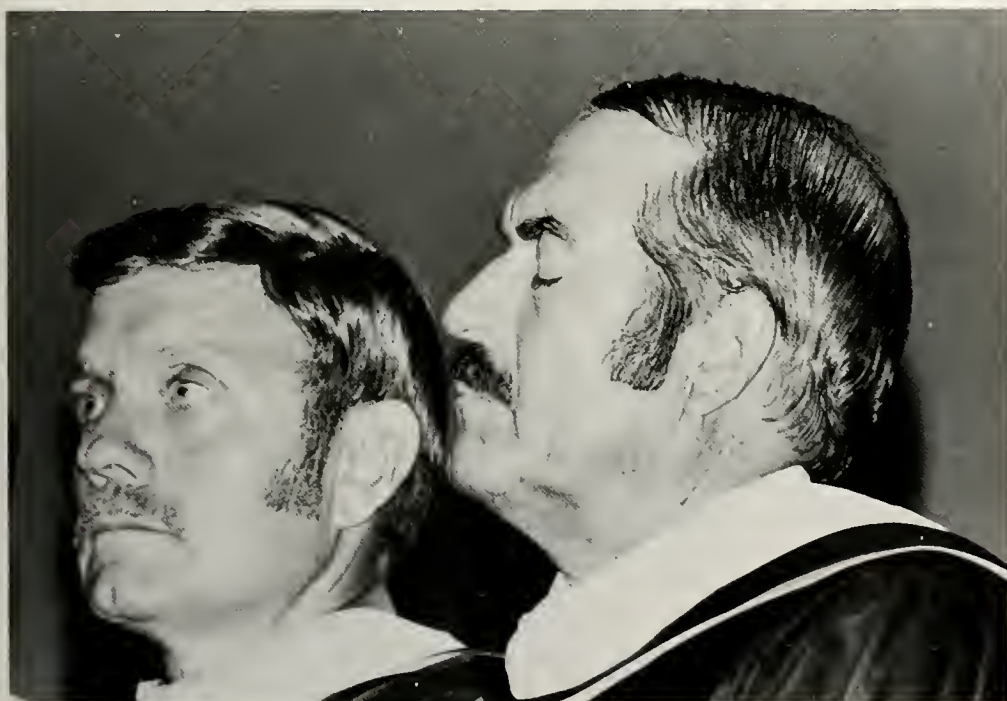

The cast, which was chosen last spring, returned to the campus early to begin rehearsals. It is not an easy thing to put together a full-length production and Miracle Worker was no exception. Some of the unusual difficulties were: Finding enough dishes to be broken for approximately twelve nights, avoiding bruises, cuts, and chipped teeth, and even losing one member of the cast due to an illness, thus having to re-cast the part. But, with the usual magic of the theatre and great amounts of work, the show was a huge success. By the way, that was real hot food used in all the eating scenes.

CONVO SEMESTER I

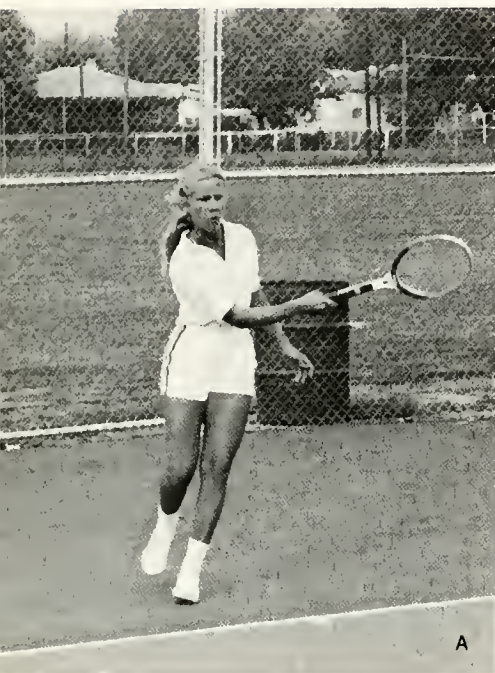

Convo has something for everybody: some entertainment, some education, an extra hour of sleep . . . Central students endure this tradition seventeen times each semester. Although there is a lot of grumbling, nobody has ever died of an overdose of convo.

NEW BLOOD FOR TENNIS

The women's tennis team, under new coach Kay Flatten, ended up with a 3-5 record. Coach Flatten had the largest turnout in several years, with promising freshmen playing key roles on the team. Junior Marci Miller and seniors Darlene Wendeln and Jane Fulton led the returning players and rotated in playing the top three positions.

A WINNING SEASON FOR VOLLEYBALL

Victory! For the first time in three years, the volleyball team came up with a winning season, ending up with a 14-12 record. Coach Sue Willey relied heavily on underclassmen, often playing three or more freshmen at a time.

The state tourney was held at Taylor, and the Whippets advanced to the quarter finals before being beaten by Taylor in a hard fought match.

Darlene Wendeln, Carla Marsh, and Jane Fulton were the only three seniors on the team. Freshman Tina Bluhm was voted MVP. Carla Marsh and Jean Shilt were co-captains during the season.

OPPONENTS GET NO SLACK FROM "POWER PACK"

The Hounds of '77 faced a strong challenge in the defense of their Little State and ICC crowns. With new head mentor Jerry England, the harriers rambled up to Notre Dame to compete in the state meet. With the title on the line, the Hounds ran true to form as they won their 3rd consecutive title. Erhard Bell led the team by taking individual honors with MVP Herman Bueno a step behind. Captain, Steve Turner, Kieth Puckett and Roger Wright all ran excellent races to round out the Hounds scoring.

The following weekend, England's hill-and-dale gang once again captured the ICC crown as they handily defeated Butler. The team will then look to replace departing seniors, Turner and Brewer for next year.

TEA & SYMPATHY NOV. 17, 18, 19

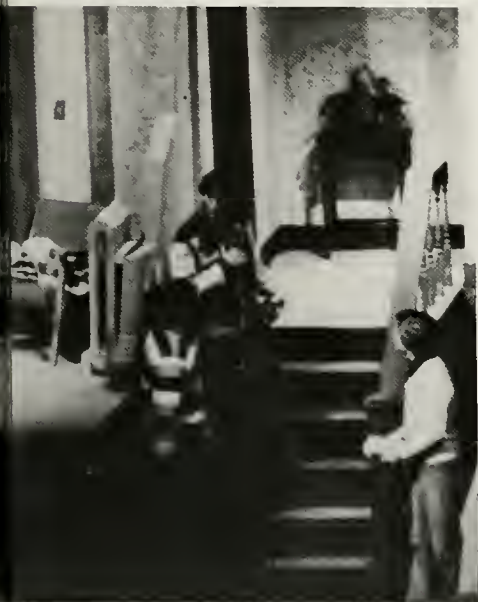

The Indiana Central Players presented Robert Anderson's moving drama, TEA AND SYMPATHY. Anderson deals with a subject of high controversy and relevancy to today's world. With emotional impact and power, Anderson explores the theme of manhood and homosexuality.

The play takes place in a New England prep school for boys. It is the story of a lonely and sensitive young man, named Tom Lee. Because of Tom's sensitivity and higher appreciation of the arts, he is falsely accused of having homosexual relations with one of the professors at school. One misunderstanding leads to another. Tom's father refuses to understand him and leaves Tom to fight alone, as does his roommate, Al. Frustrated and alone, Tom seeks out the only friend he has left — the housemaster's wife, Laura Reynolds. She is the only one who can see Tom for the truly sensitive, unique boy that he is.

Intertwining misunderstandings and emotions lead to Tom's attempt to prove himself with the local prostitute, where he miserably fails. His failure causes his attempted suicide. Jealousy of Tom by Mr. Reynolds leads to a division between Mr. Reynolds and Laura. The division culminates in the climactic scene where Laura confronts Mr. Reynolds with his own sexual incapacities. Bill Reynolds then becomes a victim of his own prejudices. Anderson powerfully gives us his definition of manhood in this turnabout climax. In the final scene, he puts that definition into practice as Laura gently and tenderly shows Tom just how much of a man he truly is.

HELPING, SHARING WITH, AND CARING FOR OTHERS IS NOT JUST TALK AT CENTRAL

The three service organizations on campus — IAY, APO, and Circle K — had a busy year serving as ushers at various events and helping set up for special days. IAY and APO jointly sponsored two blood drives. IAY also visited invalids and hospitals and held bake sales in New Dorm. Circle K had a leaf raking day and a chili supper. The national Circle K emphasis for the year is to raise money for diabetes research. The club had monthly birthday parties at the Evangelical Home for the Aged and helped their sponsoring Kiwanis Club sell peanuts on Youth Day. Youth Day sales help youth organizations in the community.

HABITANTS

A resident student forms a type of family with the others on the same floor in the dorms. Some floors become very close; on others, the residents remain only casually acquainted. Dorm families share many zany experiences, among them, preparation for floor pics. See pages 48 and 49 for identifications.

MOMS

COMMUTERS

The life of commuters is not all Mom's good cooking and soft toilet paper. Commuters must rise extra early in the morning to get to class on time. A commuter must be a race car driver, mechanic, and meteorologist rolled into one. Schwitzer Concourse and the library serve as day-time homes for many commuters. Returning home in the evenings, they led mysterious second lives, unknown to their campus friends.

SECOND SEMESTER AND FLEX ACTIVITIES

VESPER SERVICE

The show must go on ... and it sure did. Although the weather postponed the December 11 concert, the two choirs brought back the holiday spirit on January 15. The Concert Choir, directed by Mrs. Elise Marshall, sang GLORIA, by Antonio Vivaldi, and the Collegiate Choir, under the direction of Mr. David Searles, sang Benjamin Britten's CEREMONY OF CAROLS.

NURSES' CAPPING

ICU's nursing students finally received their caps. Snowstorms had delayed the capping ceremony for two weeks, but on February 12, the nurses' families and friends gathered for the occasion which will always be remembered by the students.

The Indiana Central Greyhounds started the 1977-78 season with their sights set high. First year coach, Bill Bright had a talented junior-loaded team. After eight straight wins in nine starts, the Hounds set an unprecedented school record by dropping ten straight games — the longest slump in the history of the school. The streak started with a 78-65 loss to DePauw University in the Indianapolis Classic here at Indiana Central University. The last loss in the slump was one with Butler University in a controversial finish at the Hounds home floor. The team finished the season with a 10-15 mark.

Despite the slump, there were some high points during the season. Junior, Kevin Pearson was named to the first All-ICC team and Junior, Dave Ancelet was named to the second. Pearson was also named to the All-District team on the second roster.

At the banquet on May 11, honoring winter sports, Pearson was named Most Valuable Player. Senior, Steve Kahl was named Captain, and sophomore, Jim Wernke was awarded the Kelso Reid Mental Attitude Award.

WHIPPETS BASKETBALL

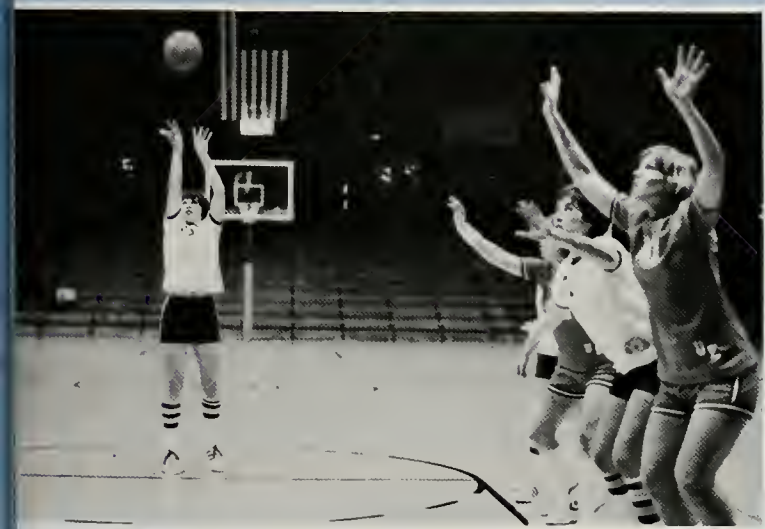

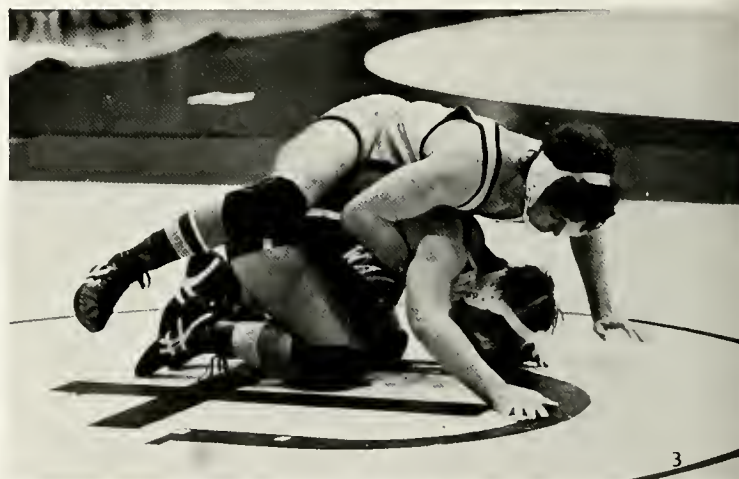

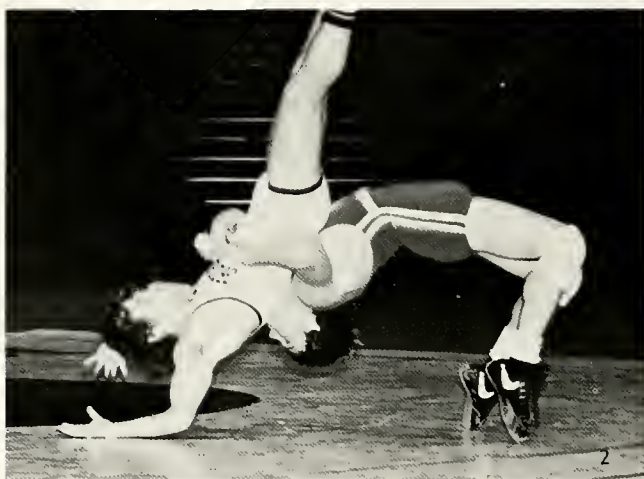

Although the Whippets had a losing season, the team holds a lot of promise for the future. The team will lose only two seniors, Jane Fulton and Deb Sachs. Cindy Sare was the sole junior on the squad, and Marci Smith and Judy Service represented the sophomore class. There were eight freshmen rounding out the team. They were: Jodi Fergason, Annette Thompson, Trina Bluhm, Mary Peoni, Shirley Amonett, Dixie Smith, Kathy Heiney and Janet Mann. The highlight of the season was beating the previously-unbeaten team from Butler.

FOUR IN A ROW

For the fourth year in a row the Greyhound wrestlers captured the ICC championship. With three champions, five runners-up, and two Hounds taking third place they scored 75.75 points. they outscored second palce Valparaiso by eight points. Mark Gray, Dan Lutgring and Tim Lanie were the Hound champions. Lanie and Lutgring made the trip to Cedar Falls, Iowa to compete in the NCAA Division II tournament and represented their school very well.

The Greyhounds ended their dual meet schedule, which included several nationally ranked teams, with a 7-7 record. Gray and Brinton Farrand took Little State crowns, and Lanie was Indiana Central's lone Anderson Invitational champ. Several special awards were presented at the Winter Awards ceremony. Gray and Lanie were named team captains, Gray was voted to receive the Mental Attitude Award.

MEN'S INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Intramural sports give the students not currently involved in an intercollegiate sport an outlet for physical activity. Men's intramural basketball was an example of such participation as many teams competed in A, B, and C-League action throughout the intramural season. The season was topped off by a tournament held in each league to decide the league championship. The A-League champions were Teeny's Boppers, B-League champs were The Fifth Floor Angels, and the C-League champs were The Connection. Each team received a trophy for first place as did the runners-up. After each contest, the nets were cut down by the winners to signify that each team was indeed a champion.

Shakespeare's MACBETH, presented February 16, 17, and 18, was a tragedy containing some of his finest rhetoric and some of ICU's finest performers and stagehands, all 40 of them. What led to the finished product was a combination of sweat, late hours, and cooperation (lots of it). How was it put together? Piecing together 4 tons of set was quite an accomplishment, not to mention the decor. Although the snow stopped classes and cars, the lights in Ransburg Auditorium and Rehearsal Hall were lit while the drama troopers remained oblivious to the frozen environment. Rehearsals went as scheduled, the stage English became published, and a resemblance to Stratford-on-Avon became apparent. Dedication, perseverance, patience, hard labor — all the king becoming graces — combined for a royal production leaving the anticipation of more to come.

Indianapolis: A City Canceled 'Til Monday

By ART HARRIS
Indianapolis has been canceled until Monday.
City officials said today they hope to return conditions to normal at the start of the week.
Mayor William Hudnut kept the snow emergency in effect today, and indicated it probably would remain in effect throughout the weekend.
He who warned city police would check motorists on city streets who did not leave in "this emergency" to be out. Hudnut said the emergency orders yesterday and today that they are not necessary. It would remain in effect today. The last snow emergency was declared by Mayor Richard Lugar in 1967 and lasted eight hours.
The mayor said the Department of Transportation and about 10 to 15 private contractors are ready to start work opening major thoroughfares as soon as the snow abates.
Hudnut said the city had a snow clearance plan in effect that consisted of three phases.
He said the first stage consisted of getting stranded motorists to emergency areas, where last night consisted of

'Worst Storm Ever In Ohio'

By ANDREW YEMMA
United Press International

A raging blizzard spread death and disaster through the Midwest, Great Lakes and Ohio Valley regions and turned today toward the snow-covered Northeast.

Worst hit were Ohio — Gov. James A. Rhodes said it was the worst blizzard in the state's history — and Kentucky — Gov. Julian Carr said it was the "worst devastating snow accumulation in 100 years."

"We all thought this will go down in the records as the worst storm we've ever had... it was a history at least to recent memory," said Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken, declaring a state of emergency.

Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan mobilized the National Guard to rescue travelers stranded in huge snowdrifts that closed thousands of miles of highways throughout the area's connection. National Guard units were sent out after leaving their cars.

With travel personnel, commerce and industry virtually shut down through the region. Thousands of Chicago Loop workers piled up in makeshift for the night.

But the storm brought new danger to the region. Winds of 40 mph and gusts to 60 mph drove snow over the top of the storm clouds, blacking out more than 100,000 homes in Columbus, power officials recommended persons without heat leave their homes before dark and to huddle with neighbors.

"Ohio is in trouble tonight," Rhodes said, and a severe snowstorm. "We need help and assistance from every Ohioan in that area."

President Carter declared a state of emergency for Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana's governors requested similar declarations, which allow the use of federal personnel and equipment.

The snow hit in depths of 18 inches at Maumee, Mich., 17 inches at Toledo, Ohio and Maumee, Wis., and 13 inches at Chicago, where a new expected to continue into the afternoon.

"This city is just about crippled," said Toledo police dispatcher Kevin Reid.

While snowdrifts through the region as it hit and the mph, dropping temperatures in the north in low-deep wind-chill readings in the sub-zero. Forecasters felt no record time.

At least 30 persons died since the blizzard began to ravage and high winds and snowdrifts in the Southeast on Wednesday. Four died in Ohio, three in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Alabama, two each in Missouri and Georgia, and one each in South Dakota, Wisconsin, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Maine.

On the 11th anniversary of their city's last great blizzard, Chicagoans downed Leap officers early and the commuter trains ran ahead of schedule. At the height of the rush hour two trains bumped together, sending 200 persons to hospitals. Only 13 were seriously injured.

Unable to keep up with the snowfall, officials quit plowing and waiting for the night to continue surrounding Chicago. O'Hare International, the city's busiest airport, closed indefinitely at 11:30 a.m. for only the third time in its history.

"It's a hell but there are the snow plows can't see where they're going," said flight instructor Tom Benson.

Three Crystal Lake, Ill., school buses got lost in the blizzard. Two were found almost immediately but the third — full of children — was found in a ditch. Later by a snowmobile club alerted by a contact land radio. Snowmobilers searched for children, but to no avail, in the nearest farmhouse.

To the east, high winds and snow blanketing the region and rivers cranked out of their banks in the Appalachians. About 1,000 West Virginia snowmobiles were driven from their homes by strong wind gusts. Federal disaster officials were called in.

Handreds were left their homes in scattered communities along the Gulf Coast and in New England. Tennessee killed a 3-year-old child and injured 10

Snow-Stalled Train Rider Rescues Start

By MICHAEL BROWN and LEE BROWN
Snowbound Indiana residents looked to snowplows, to weather forecasters for relief and to Federal assistance today in starting the recovery from a catastrophic blizzard that had paralyzed the state for four days.

take days, and probably weeks, to recover from the storm. "Over the next week and conditions will slowly improve, but it will take a long time to get back to normal. It will be a long time to get back to normal."

State emergency called by Gov. Otis Borden and Indiana's most cities, including Indianapolis, resumed to feel today. State officials have positioned the White House to have to draw disaster relief from the Federal Reserve Bank to be received.

Borden said that a presidential emergency he declared. Jim Smith, a conservative assistant in Borden, said:

Snow-Stalled Train Rider Rescues Start

most trains had run out of fuel and passengers were stranded in the snow.

Victims of the storm sought to be a helicopter to the site, this was not a new Indiana because of blizzard which.

The rescue locomotives were sent by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in Louisville, 100 miles south of the stalled train.

The train ran into the snow about yesterday between Indianapolis and Southridge, 10 miles north of Southridge, railroad officials said.

Victims and the train left Chicago as scheduled Wednesday, but was snowed slowly through Indiana when the locomotive broke down.

A backing locomotive arrived from Louisville and pulled the train into Southridge, where the fire department filed the boiler with water. The train left the railroad after leaving Southridge.

"From what I've told, it was not a bad accident," Vranich said. "They tried to push their way out, but they couldn't. Normally, trains can do that using the momentum to the side of the tracks."

Vranich said 20 of the passengers seemed to be from Illinois and Indiana, and the conductor sent messages by radio to railroad officials.

To dramatize the Blizzard of '78 would be anticlimactic. Those of us who lived through it won't forget the hardships, or the sense of community that started with the snow on January 25. For your interest, and perhaps to jog a few memories in the years to come, we have put together a timetable of blizzard events.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1978 5 a.m. Five inches of old snow on ground, light snow began to fall.

3:45 p.m. Weather Service issued blizzard warning.

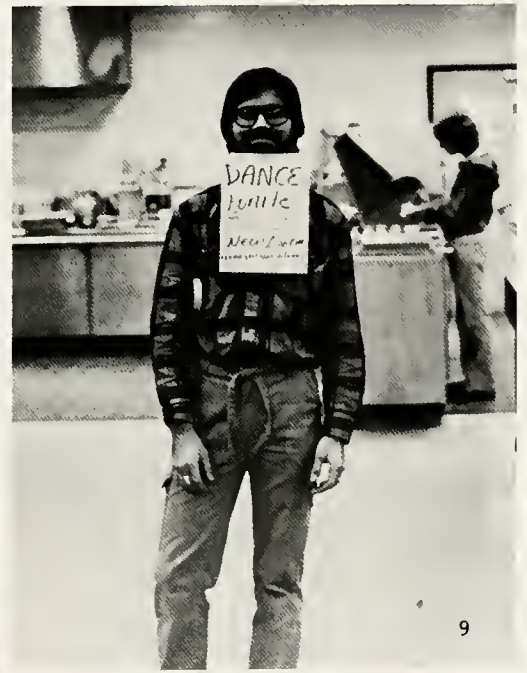

4:00 p.m. Heavy snow began to fall.

8:45 p.m. Travelers warned to "seek shelter immediately."

THURSDAY 2:12 a.m. Winds gusting to 55 m.p.h.

9:00 a.m. Wind chill — 51 degrees below zero.

FRIDAY 2:02 a.m. Snow stopped, more than 20 inches on ground, 15.5 inches from blizzard.

1) Frozen berries ... 2) "The Cold Ones" ... 3) and a mobile snowperson are results of the average year's snowfall. 4) During "Blizzard Morning", a blade equipped truck makes a futile attempt at keeping the parking lots open. 5) Friday evenings' INDIANAPOLIS NEWS gave testimony to the storms fury. 6) A hopeless situation ... 7) began to look better on Friday, as the plows began to move. 8) A breather was necessary for those who made it to Schwitzer Thursday morning. 9) Dave Llewellyn advertises a hastily planned dance for those stranded on campus. 10) Snow removal was a slow task ... a front-end loader was working 2 weeks later.

CENTRAL SINGERS

The Central Singers, now in the group's twentieth year, entertained a variety of people with a variety of music during the 1977-78 school year. Diversity described the group's repertoire, including popular and classic selections, as well as music from the stage, old and new. This talented group gave numerous concerts in the community during the year, and performed with the Concert Choir on its Michigan-Canadian tour in April.

The Central Singers were directed by Mrs. Elise Marshall. Members of the group were: George Arndt; Debbie Asher; Brian Brauchla; Julie Cain; Chris Cobb; Jeanne Fitzgerald; Kevin Hooke; Dale Jones; Brenda Maxwell; Chris Miller; Cindy Peters; Kathy Richmond; Ann Schilling; Libby Scoggins; Donald Snyder; Rick Soard; Terry Woods; Connie Bolser, accompanist.

Throughout the year, the music department presented a variety of recitals. The juniors and seniors majoring or minoring in music lived up to the reputation of the ICU music department. We would like to express our gratitude to Mrs. Sachs, music department secretary, for her help in preparing this list, as well as helping with other music sections in this book.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU

A dinner theatre at ICU is really an event, and seemingly everyone gets involved; students can't help but notice when one entire end of the cafeteria is transformed into a huge stage set! Interest was heightened by the fact that this year's dinner theatre show was Hart and Kaufman's zany comedy, YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU.

The script required such odd props as live boa constrictors, a printing press, and firecrackers (real ones!). Each day of production week, the student body took note of the new items that had been added to the set.

The story itself involved the "adventures" of the Sycamore family in New York in the 1930's. Each family member was a unique character. Grandpa, head of the household, was (according to a cast member) "the original hippie." Others included: Grandpa's daughter, Penny, who divided her time between writing plays, painting, and taking care of the family; Penny's husband Paul, and his friend Mr. DePinna (who came to deliver ice eight years ago and just stayed). Also, there was Rheba, the maid and her strange boyfriend Donald, Penny's daughter Essie, the prima ballerina, and her husband Ed. Much of the play was concerned with solving the problems of the two young lovers, Alice Sycamore and her fiance Tony Kirby.

With a household like this, funny things were bound to happen. Besides the abundant comedy, however, the play had a message. Grandpa said it best: "How many of us would be willing to settle when we're young for what we eventually get? All those plans we make . . . What happens to them? It's only a handful of the lucky ones who can look back and say that they even came close."

The message came through to the audiences: relax . . . do what makes you happy, and enjoy life . . . because, after all, you can't take it with you!

1) Ed is confronted by "The Man" with charges of being an anarchist. 2) Donald shows his jar of flies to sweetie Rheba. 3) Mr. DePinna strikes a pose. 4) Grandpa is accused of income tax evasion by agent Henderson. 5) Boris Kolenkhov gives Mr. Kirby a wrestling "lesson" . . . 6) with unfortunate results. 7) A tender moment between Alice and Tony. 8) Ed finds something funny about Mrs. Kirby's reaction to the Sycamore's pet snake.

The Symphonic Wind Ensemble and the Stage Band held their second concert of the year on Sunday, April 2, 1978. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble, directed by James Calvert, played selections ranging from STAR WARS MEDLEY, to an arrangement of Broadway hits, to the classics of Bach. James Edison directed the Stage Band in ROCKY, BODY AND SOUL, DIRTY OLD MAN, and other songs. (Members of the bands are listed on page 51.)

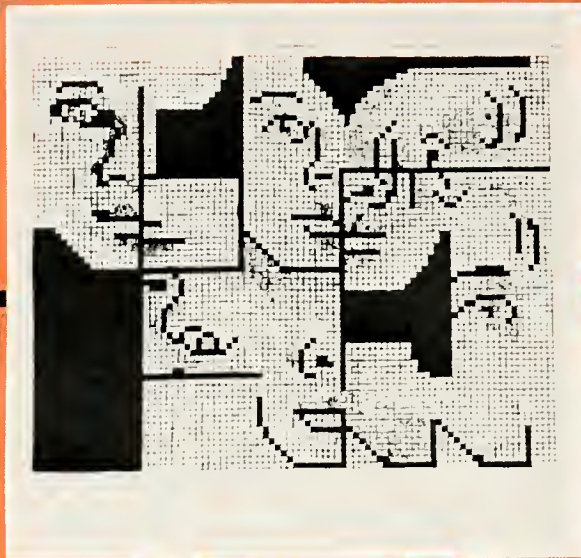

CONCERT CHOIR

The ICU Concert Choir kept a busy schedule throughout the year. They presented a Vesper service (see page 54), and a spring concert on campus. The spring concert, on Sunday, April 9, consisted of a list of beautiful songs, ranging from Bach to ICU's own Terry Woods. The choir also went on tour in Michigan and Canada during spring break. Mrs. Elise Marshall, conductor, really does a wonderful job with these talented people.

The new clubs give the growing student population the opportunity to get involved. We salute those people who took the time and energy to create these new organizations.
